

Needed monthly net salary, after ministry expenses, and overhead is $1,800. The minimum need is $2,606. We believe God would have us receive 100% of our projected goal, and as opposed to slightly under, slightly over it. As you can see, the budgets in some categories are quite small. Our goal is to raise more than our need, on up to $4,500/month. We need this money towards renting a room for English Clubs, outreach and a meeting place. Once the needed support is raised, and our debt is paid, we will be able to raise some categories slightly to a more manageable number.

The $4,500 figures in (hopefully covering), ministry expenses, ministry travel, and emergency savings. It will also get us out of the red with International Messengers. Also, rent in Ukraine can sometimes raise unexpectedly or you can even have to find a new place and our current rent is pretty low and hard to find.

We currently receive a rough average of $1,500/month. After 6 months on the mission field we began to go into the red with our mission's agency which we would really like to avoid.

Debt breakdown (adjusted monthly):

International Messengers:	2,143.21
Credit Card:	7,306.37
Laptop
Trip to U.S.
Setting up in Ukraine
Shipping Books
Ministry Expenses
Trip to Israel
Total Debt:	$9,449.58

Would you join us in prayer?

We are praying for the Lord to provide 100 people committed (seriously committed) to giving $15/month. Since February we have received equivalent commitments, by word not necessarily deed, of about 77 new people! This places us above our bare-minimum-scraping-by-goal, and theoretically at about 94% of our personal goal 2013 goal, before ministry needs. However, it is our experience that only about 70% of these verbal commitments will be faithful which places more at about, $2,008.5 out of our minimum need of $2,506. As the next few months pass we will be able to get a clearer picture of the actual number. I only have so many friends, so every "yes" or "no" really counts towards keeping us in Ukraine to be a lasting influence for the sake of the Gospel.

We also have a need to fund the translation of the Redemption Book:

Approximately $3,000 will pay for translation, publishing and get us started with over 1,000 copies.

Thank you for your prayerful consideration of being on the sending or going side of this ministry team!
